Living well with dementia

The importance of the person and the environment for wellbeing in dementia

Chapter 2

What is “living well”?

References

Audit Commission (2000) Forget Me Not: Mental Health Services for Older People.

Chapter 3

Measuring living well with dementia

References

chronically ill, Qual Life Res, 7, pp. 345–51.

Chapter 4

Socio-economic arguments for promoting living well with dementia

References

Allen, S. Adult social care worth £43bn to English economy, survey shows. The Guardian newspaper. 14 March 2013

NICE/SCIE. (2006) Dementia: Supporting people with dementia and their carers in health and

Chapter 5

A public health perspective on living well in dementia, and the debate over screening

References

All-Party Parliamentary Group (2012) Unlocking Diagnosis: The key to improving the lives of people with dementia.

Chapter 6

The relevance of the person for living well with dementia

Chapter 6

The relevance of the person for living well with dementia

12
References

National Care Forum (2007). Key principles of person-centred dementia care. Coventry:

NICE QS 30: Quality statement 6: Physical and mental health and wellbeing

SCIE guidance 15. “Dignity in care”

Chapter 7

Leisure activities and living well with dementia

References

North West Dementia Centre Factsheet “Activities in care homes for people with dementia”. Available at: http://www.pssru.ac.uk/pdf/MCpdfs/Activities_factsheet.pdf.

Chapter 8

Maintaining wellbeing in end-of-life care for living well with dementia

References

Chapter 9

Living well with specific types of dementia: a cognitive neurology perspectiv

References

Chapter 10

General activities which encourage wellbeing

References

with dementia, Cochrane Database of Systematic Reviews, 4, 1–19.

dementia. In: B. Haight, J. Webster editor(s), The art and science of reminiscing: theory, research, methods and applications, Washington DC: Taylor & Francis.

Chapter 11
Decision-making and an introduction to advocacy in living well with dementia

References

British Medical Association and Royal College of Nursing (1995) The Older Person: Consent and

DoH (2000) No secrets: Guidance on developing and implementing multi-agency policies and procedures to protect vulnerable adults from abuse. London: DoH. Available at:

DoH (2005a) Now I feel tall - what a patient-led NHS feels like. London: DoH. Available at:

Hansen, L., Archbold, P.G., Stewart, B.J. (2004) Role strain and ease in decision-making to withdraw or withhold life support for elderly relatives, J Nurs Scholarsh, 36, pp. 233-8.

advanced dementia use a substituted judgment when making a decision for that person?, Am J

Joseph Rowntree Foundation/’Dementia North’ and Northumbria University/Cantley, C,

Mental Health Foundation and Foundation for people with disabilities. (2005) Mental capacity and the Mental Capacity Act. A literature review. London: Mental Health Foundation and Foundation for people with disabilities.
Chapter 12

Communication and living well with dementia

References

Chapter 13

Home and ward design to promote living well with dementia

SCIE Research Briefing: Adding communication with people with dementia.

References

Chapter 14

Assistive technology and living well with dementia

References

Tinker, A. (2003) Assistive technology and its role in housing policies for older people, Quality in Ageing, 4, 2, 4-12.

Chapter 15
Ambient-assisted living well with dementia

References

AALIANCE. The European Ambient Assisted Living Alliance: Strategic Research Agenda. March 2010. AALIANCE Project Deliverable 2.5. Available at: www.aaliance.eu.

Chapter 16

The importance of built environments for living well with dementia

References:

Inclusive Design for Getting Outdoors. (Date uncertain.) Do gardens matter? The role of residential outdoor space. Available at: http://www.idgo.ac.uk/useful_resources/Publications/WISE_MTP_brochure_FINAL.pdf

Inclusive Design for Getting Outdoors. (Date uncertain.) Pedestrian-friendly environments. Available at: http://www.openspace.eca.ac.uk/pdf/appendixf/OPENspacewebsite_APPENDIX_F_resource_5.pdf

Inclusive Design for Getting Outdoors. (Date uncertain.) Tactile pacing: design, sitting and laying. Available at: http://www.idgo.ac.uk/useful_resources/Publications/Salford_MTP_brochure_FINAL.pdf

Chapter 17

Dementia-friendly communities and living well with dementia

References

Friedli, L [on behalf of the World Health Organization: Europe]; National Institute for Mental Health in England, Child Poverty Action Group, Faculty of Public Health and Mental Health Foundation. (2009) Mental health, resilience and inequalities. Available at:

